They cling to the anchor as their only safety. So, too has our sail experience proved that progress is not improvement. It is known to all who are conversant with our history that from 1830 down to and inclusive of our present Constitution we have been descending with sure grada-tion "from bad to worse," politically. After the recent almost exhaustive pre sentation of the subject by Judge Dabney, of Powhatan, it may appear superfluous to say more in opposition to a convention to change the Constitution foisted upon us by our enemies. The party framing that instrument, feeling themselves safely ensconced in power has inherited the amiable characteristics and not anticipating the possibility of the changes occasionally wrought by dered by providing for gradual amendments by legislative enactment.
